Indonesia is an agriculture country. Most of the population are farmers. Most of them are still traditional ones. They still use animals to cultivate their ricefields. For example, they still use traditional plough pulled by cows or buffaloes. They dig the soil with hoes and spades. Then women plant the rice seeds by putting the seeds one by one into the ground. They use "ani-ani", special knives, to cut the rice stalks. They also grind the unhulled rice with wooden rice grinders.

Now in some certain areas farmers begin using tractors to cultivate the rice and the rice milling machines to grind the rice.

Farmer in Indonesia rammer fertilized third rice field with the animal waste or compost. But now they spread artificial fertilizer, such as urea, NPK, etc to increase their rice products. They also plant new varieties of rice, such as IR-R, BP 5.
